Invitation

More than 600 people are expected to attend the 2026 Australian Almond Conference, in Adelaide from October 13 to 15, making it a fantastic opportunity for goods and service providers to engage with growers and other industry stakeholders.

The conference organising committee has taken on board delegate feedback from the 2024 event and as a result all presentations and panel discussions will be on one stage, instead being split across two areas. This way attendees won't miss any of the talks and there's extra booth space for exhibitors, which are always in high demand. The hospitality hub will be positioned amongst the trade exhibits, ensuring maximum access to delegates.

The poster display area has also been expanded, giving companies the opportunity to showcase innovations that will benefit the almond industry. Further details about this exciting opportunity can be viewed in the prospectus.

This year an afternoon session on October 13 has been introduced, with a specific focus on almond marketing. Almond buyers and traders will get the chance to hear about the work being done to raise the profile and drive demand for Australian Almonds both domestically and internationally.

Hort Innovation is funding almost 30 research and development projects on behalf of the almond industry, this important work is made possible with grower levies and contributions from the Australian Government. Many of these projects will be showcased either on stage or in the poster display area during the conference.

The Slido app will be used at the conference to ensure all delegates can interact with presenters.

There will be plenty of opportunities for delegates to learn, but time has also been set aside for socialising with the welcome reception, gala dinner and closing drinks providing a chance for industry representatives to catch up. The gala dinner is also a time to recognise those who have made a significant contribution to our industry.

Almond pricing has improved in the past year, but growers are facing increasing input costs, pest and disease pressures and many other challenges.

Since our last conference, we have seen:

- Varroa mite continue to spread across Australia.
- Bee availability for pollination has been challenged, especially in South Australia due to dry conditions and biosecurity regulations.
- Plant biosecurity incursions are becoming more frequent, complex and persistent.
- Redevelopment is on the minds of many growers, as 40 per cent of Australia's orchards are due for replanting in the next five years.
- New almond variety Aurora B has moved to grower trials.

- The Federal Government push ahead with the Murray Darling Basing Plan, announcing more water buybacks to meet water saving targets.
- There's increasing need for growers and the broader industry to adopt best practice, with consumers demanding food that is sustainably produced.
- The Australian Almonds marketing team has developed a cookbook, appointed two brand ambassadors, showcased the industry on television screens in Australia and South East Asia and appointed strategic consulting companies to deliver key messaging into our two largest export markets.
- A program has been established to upskill the next generation of almond leaders.
- The Almond Board of Australia continues to work with growers and researchers to fast track commercialisation of new technologies.

For the 2026, conference sponsorship packages and trade display opportunities have been created to suit a variety of budgets. Many of the 17 options listed in this prospectus are exclusive packages but there are also some that can be purchased by more than one organisation.

We would look forward to seeing you at our 2026 conference.

Tim Jackson, CEO
Almond Board of Australia

Who Will Be There?

The 2026 Australian Almond Conference aims to attract 600+ delegates.

Venue

Adelaide Convention Centre, South Australia

The Adelaide Convention Centre is one of the world's most modern, flexible and technologically advanced meetings and event venues. Comprising three distinct yet seamlessly integrated buildings, the Centre's spacious facilities are complemented by creative, restaurant-quality menus, expert service and innovative event technologies. Focused on 'feel good, whole food, made fresh', the venue's Honest Goodness menu has transformed the convention centre culinary experience with its emphasis on minimal intervention foods and conscious reduction of processed elements.

The Adelaide Convention Centre is located at the heart of Adelaide's iconic Riverbank Precinct, just 15 minutes' drive from the Adelaide International Airport. The CBD is home to a lively arts, entertainment, sporting and dining scene, with 3,500 hotel rooms located within a five minute walk from the Adelaide Convention Centre and more than 6,000 rooms within the wider city centre. Once you've arrived there's little need for transportation; the city's compact nature makes it ideal for walking to conferences.

For guests travelling to South Australia from interstate and looking to extend their stay, Adelaide is just a stone's throw from South Australia's world-famous wine regions; the unspoilt wilderness of Kangaroo Island and the Flinders Ranges, the most accessible outback experience in Australia.

Confirm your sponsorship early

Confirmation of your sponsorship as soon as possible will ensure a higher level of exposure. An extensive promotional campaign including advertisements, direct email campaigns and web exposure will be implemented in the lead-up to the 2026 Conference. This is the premium channel for raising your visibility to the Australian almond industry.

Sponsorship and exhibition options

We are delighted to present the following sponsorship opportunities, which will promote your organisation to a targeted audience and showcase your brand in front of key stakeholders in the Australian almond industry.

Please note that sponsorship and exhibition opportunities are subject to availability. Prices indicated in this document are in Australian dollars and include GST.

Please contact shanna@premiereventconcepts.com.au if you would like to discuss bespoke options for sponsorship that align with your organisation's corporate objectives.
